Re: Development Authority's submissions and evidence addressing certain Preliminary Matters, SDAB 2026-007

Background

1. The Development Authority for the Regional Municipality of Wood Buffalo ("Development Authority") received notice from the Clerk of the Board that seventeen notices of appeal have been filed to date against the approval of Development Permit No 2024-00093 ("Development Permit"), for a Change of Use from Single Detached Dwelling to Resort Facility, located at 7880 Draper Road, Fort McMurray, Alberta, with a legal address of Plan 2321444, Block 1, Lot 1 ("Lands").

2. The application for Development Permit 2024-00093 ("DP Application")[1] was submitted to the Development Authority by Jean Family Businesses Ltd. ("Respondent") on April 8, 2024.[2]

3. The Development Authority approved and issued the Development Permit to the Respondent on September 2, 2026.

4. The Lands are located in the Draper community. The Development Authority mailed a notice of decision[3] to all properties in the Draper community, except those owned by the RMWB, on September 3, 2026. [4]

5. A separate notice of decision was posted to the Regional Municipality of Wood Buffalo ("RMWB") website on September 10, 2026 ("Original Web Notice").[5] The Original Web Notice contained three errors:

    a. The Development Permit number was incorrectly referenced as 2026-00093;

[1] See Exhibit 1 – DP Application
[2] See Exhibit 2 – E-Permitting Record for DP 2024-00093
[3] See Exhibit 3 – Mailed Notice
[4] See Exhibit 4 – Properties sent a mail notice
[5] See Exhibit 5 – Original Web Notice

b. The description of the development did not align with the description in the Development Permit and said "Change of Use from Single Dwelling to Resort to Facility" instead of "Change of Use from Single Detached Dwelling to Resort Facility";

c. The legal description of the Lands is incorrectly referenced as "Lot 1, Plan 1, Block 232144".

6. On September 17, the inaccurate development description in the Original Web Notice was identified and corrected to "Change of Use from Single Detached Dwelling to Resort Facility" on the RMWB website[6].

7. Subsequently, the inaccurate development permit number and legal address in the Original Web Notice were identified and on September 28, 2026, a new notice of decision correcting the inaccuracies was posted to the RMWB website ("Corrected Web Notice").[7]

8. On September 29, 2026, the Development Authority received a Preliminary Hearing Notification for appeal SDAB 2026-07, and provides these written submissions to address the following two issues:

a. Which version of the Land Use Bylaw applies: Land Use Bylaw No. 99/059 or Land Use Bylaw No. 26/001; and

b. When does the twenty-one-day appeal period set out in section 686(1) of the Municipal Government Act commence;

Which Version of the Land Use Bylaw Applies?

9. The Development Authority submits that Land Use Bylaw No. 99/059 applies to the approval of the Development Permit and appeal SDAB 2026-007.

10. On January 1, 2026, Land Use Bylaw No.99/059 was repealed and Land Use Bylaw No. 26/001 came into effect. Section 1.6.1 of Land Use Bylaw No. 26/001, which is currently in force, identifies as follows:

> A complete application for subdivision, development permit or amendment to the Land Use Bylaw which has been submitted or lawfully started prior to the effective date of this Bylaw, including any appeals associated with such

[6] See Exhibit 6 – September 17 correction to notice
[7] See Exhibit 7 – Corrected Web Notice

applications, shall be evaluated under the provisions of the former Land Use Bylaw No. 99/059, as amended.

11. The Development Authority submits that the DP Application was lawfully started or submitted when it was received by the Development Authority on April 8, 2024. As this date precedes the January 1, 2026, effective date of Land Use Bylaw No. 26/001, Land Use Bylaw No. 99/059 applies to the approval of the Development Permit and appeal SDAB 2026-007.

When does calculation of the 21-day period commence?

12. The Development Authority submits that calculation of the 21-day-period in section 686(2)(b) of the Municipal Government Act properly commences on September 29, 2026.

13. Section 686(2)(b) of the Municipal Government Act sets out the timeline for a person affected by a development permit to file an appeal:

> A development appeal is commenced by filing a notice of the appeal, containing reasons, with the board hearing the appeal in the case of an appeal made by a person referred to in section 685(2), within 21 days after the date on which the notice of the issuance of the permit was given in accordance with the land use bylaw.

14. Calculation of the 21-day period commences on the day after a notice of decision, that complies with the requirements of Section 29.1 of the Land Use Bylaw 99/059, has been given. Where proper notice has not been given, an affected person continues to have a right of appeal, and the 21-day period does not commence for each affected person until they have actual knowledge that the Development Permit has been issued.

15. In World Health Edmonton Inc. v. Edmonton (City)[8], the Court of Appeal found that the SDAB was incorrect in its conclusion that the appellant failed to file its notice of appeal on time. The Court found that the notice of decision published online by Edmonton was inadequate. The notice was not sufficient to enable a reasonable reader to appreciate that its interests might be adversely affected by the issuance of the proposed development permit; while Edmonton had included the legal address of the parcel in its notice of decision, it had failed to include all of the civil addresses that were to be developed within that parcel. Consequently, the Court determined that the appeal period continued to run until 14 days[9] after the appellant had actual knowledge that the development permit was issued.

16. Section 29.1 of Land Use Bylaw No. 99/059 sets out the specific notice requirements for the Development Permit:

> Where a development permit application is approved, the Development Officer or designate shall:
> (a) Communicate in writing, a notice of decision to the applicant or his agent, and make a copy available of the approval in the Municipal Office;
> (b) For permitted uses involving the imposition of variance, "Discretional Uses – Development Office" and "Discretionary Uses – Planning Commission", publish a notice locally. Such notice shall state the location and address of the property for which the application has been made, the nature of the approval, and the decision of the Development Authority;
> (c) For "Discretionary Uses – Planning Commission", mail a notice of decision to adjacent landowners or other affected parties or landowners as determined by the Development Authority.

17. The Lands are zoned Small Holdings in Land Use Bylaw No. 99/059. The Development Permit is issued for a change in use to Resort Facility. Resort Facility is designated as "Discretionary Uses – Planning Commission" in the Small Holdings land use district. For this reason, the requirements in both sections 29.1(b) and 29.1(c) of the Land Use Bylaw No. 99/059 inform the notice requirements for the Development Permit.

18. The Mailed Notice was sent by regular mail to all properties in the Draper community on September 3, 2026, and contains accurate information. Therefore, the Development Authority submits that the notice requirements of section 29.1(c) of Land Use Bylaw No. 99/059 were met on September 3, 2026; however, the notice requirements of section 29.1(b) of Land Use Bylaw No. 99/059 were not met until a later date.

19. While the Original Web Notice was posted to the RMWB website on September 10, 2026, it contained three errors. The errors in the Original Notice include an incorrect legal address, an improper permit number and an incorrect description of the development.

[9] Note that the Municipal Government Act was amended in 2017 to change the period in section 686 from 14 days to 21 days.

20. It is arguable that the requirements of section 29.1(b) of Land Use Bylaw 99/059 were met on September 17, 2026, when the description of the approved development was corrected on the RMWB's website; at that time, the posted notice of decision included the correct municipal address for the Lands, a description of the development, and identified that the permit was approved. However, the notice still contained inaccuracies in the legal description of the Lands and the permit number. Given these errors and following the Court's analysis in World Health Edmonton Inc. v. Edmonton (City), it is relevant to consider whether a reasonable reader of the notice would appreciate that its interests might be adversely affected.

21. The Development Authority's position is that the permit number on a development permit is administrative in nature and issued for internal tracking purposes. As such, an inaccuracy does not impact a reader's ability to appreciate that its interests might be affected. However, the effect of the incorrect legal address in the Original Web Notice was to create ambiguity in the location of the development that was approved; it's possible a reasonable person might have noted that ambiguity, struggled to identify which property the development applied to and failed to appreciate that its interests could be adversely affected.

22. The legal address was corrected, along with the permit number, when the Corrected Web Notice was posted on September 28, 2026. At that time, the published notice of decision included the requirements in both sections 29.1(b) and 29.1(c) of Land Use Bylaw No. 99/059 and a reasonable person ought to have appreciated that its interests might be affected. As a result, the Development Authority submits that the 21-day period should be calculated commencing on September 29, 2026.

Submitted on behalf of the Development Authority on October 7, 2026.

Written Submission of the Permit Holder on the Preliminary Issues

SDAB File No. 2026-007 · Development Permit 2024-DP-00093 · 7880 Draper Road (Lot 1, Block 1, Plan 2321444)

To: Clerk, Subdivision and Development Appeal Board, Regional Municipality of Wood Buffalo From: Jean Family Businesses Ltd. (Applicant and Permit Holder) Date: October 7, 2026

1. Overview

The Board will decide four preliminary issues: (1) which Land Use Bylaw applies to the development permit application; (2) when the 21-day appeal period under s. 686(1) of the Municipal Government Act (MGA) began; (3) format of the merit hearing (virtual or in person); and (4) scheduling and availability for the merit hearing. This submission addresses the first two preliminary issues.

Summary of the Permit Holder's position:

1. Land Use Bylaw 99/059 applies. Section 1.6.1 of Bylaw 26/001 provides that a complete application submitted before January 1, 2026, "including any appeals associated with such applications," is evaluated under Bylaw 99/059. This application was submitted on April 5, 2024, and accepted for processing and circulated by the Municipality on April 11, 2024.
2. The appeals before the Board are timely on any view. All but one of the 16 appeals (listed in Schedule A) were filed on or before September 29, 2026, within 21 days of the earliest date on which notice could be said to have been given. The remaining one was filed on September 30, within the October 1 deadline stated on the Municipality's own September 10 notice. The Permit Holder asks the Board to fix a definitive last day for appeals of October 1, 2026 and to schedule the merit hearing promptly after that date.

2. Chronology

Date	Event	Exhibit
April 5, 2024	Application for change of use from single detached dwelling to Resort Facility submitted by the Permit Holder's agent with supporting documents	A
April 11, 2024	Municipality (Planner III, Planning and Development Services) advises the documents "meet that standard to be processed" and circulates the application for internal and external review	B

January 1, 2026	Bylaw 26/001 comes into effect and repeals Bylaw 99/059; s. 1.6.1 sets the transition rule	–
January 21, 2026	Following a meeting on January 20, the Municipality's Director of Planning and Development Services confirms in writing that both active development permits (site remediation and change of use to Resort Facility) "will be reviewed under LUB 99/059"	C
September 2, 2026	Development Permit 2024-DP-00093 issued. Permit Holder receives approval on September 3, 2026.	D
September 3, 2026	Municipality mails "Notice to Adjacent Property Owners" to Draper households. It states that appeals must be received within 21 days after the decision is posted, and that posting will occur September 10	E
September 10, 2026	Decision posted on the municipal website, and stated an appeal deadline of October 1, 2026. The notice contained administrative errors in the permit number and property plan number (though civic address was correct).	F
September 18–30, 2026	Notices of appeal filed under SDAB 2026-007	Schedule A
September 28, 2026	Corrected notice posted, stating an appeal deadline of October 19, 2026	G

3. Issue 1: Which Land Use Bylaw Applies

3.1 The transition clause is express and covers these appeals

Bylaw 26/001, s. 1.6.1, directs that a complete application for a development permit "submitted or lawfully started" before the effective date, "including any appeals associated with such applications," is evaluated under the former Bylaw 99/059. The clause names appeals specifically. It leaves no room to apply Bylaw 26/001 to these appeals.

The Municipality has applied the clause in this way. On January 21, 2026, after Bylaw 26/001 took effect, the Municipality's Director of Planning and Development Services confirmed in writing, following a meeting with the Permit Holder's team, that the application for change of use to Resort Facility and the site remediation application "will be reviewed under LUB 99/059" (Exhibit C).

The Development Authority issued the permit on that basis. The permit itself classifies the use as a discretionary use in the SH – Small Holdings District and refers to "Land Use Bylaw No. 99/059" in its conditions (Exhibit D, conditions 1, 2 and 14). The application form was likewise made "under the provisions of the Land Use Bylaw 99/059" (Exhibit A).

To the extent that s. 687(3) of the MGA directs the Board to “comply with any applicable land use policies”, Council has itself specified, by s. 1.6.1 of the Land Use Bylaw 26/001, that for transitioned applications and their appeals, the operative bylaw is 99/059.

3.2 The application was complete before January 1, 2026

- The standard. Under Bylaw 26/001, s. 2.2.5(a), an application is complete when, in the Development Authority's opinion, it contains the documents and information needed to review it. Bylaw 99/059, s. 25.1, takes the same approach: an application is incomplete only if the Development Officer deems it so, and the Officer may then return it to the applicant; under s. 25.2 a returned application is deemed not to have been presented until the missing information is supplied.
- The evidence. The application (Exhibit A) and its supporting documents were submitted on April 5, 2024. Six days later the Municipality confirmed they met the standard to be processed, and circulated the application for partner review (Exhibit B). Section 25 of Bylaw 99/059 sets out the only process for treating an application as incomplete: the Development Officer deems it incomplete and returns the form, submissions and fee (less administration costs), after which the application is deemed not presented (ss. 25.1, 25.2). None of that occurred. The Municipality instead accepted the application for processing and circulated it (Exhibit B), and has processed it for more than two years. The application therefore stood as presented and complete. This is consistent with the written-confirmation step in Bylaw 26/001, s. 2.2.5(a), under which the Development Authority confirms completeness within 20 days of receipt; the Municipality's April 11, 2024 written confirmation came six days after submission.
- Later technical requests do not undo completeness. Bylaw 99/059, s. 22.2, allows the Development Authority to require further studies during review, and s. 22.3 allows it to decide an application without all of the required information where, in its opinion, a decision can properly be made. The Municipality's later requests for information were made during review of an application it had accepted and, as its Director confirmed on January 21, 2026, was continuing to review under 99/059.

3.3 Response to the contrary submission

One appellant (Cooper) says the application was not complete because a stormwater plan is dated July 2026 and an August 14, 2026 email says it was only then submitted. That submission fails for two reasons:

1. The stormwater management plan and the other items the Municipality has requested (parking areas, accessory structure dimensions and similar site plan details) are further information requested during the review of an application the Municipality accepted in April 2024 and has continued to process under Bylaw 99/059. Section 22.3 contemplates exactly this: the Development Authority decides what it needs to properly decide the application, and the application is not returned or deemed not presented under s. 25.
2. Completeness is judged at the point the Development Authority accepts the application for review. If each later technical study could reopen the question, any application could be made not "complete" by later review requests, and the transition clause would give no protection.

3.4 "Deemed refusal"

One appellant (Werkema) asks how a two-year-old application could still be open and suggests it is deemed refused. The 40-day decision period may be extended by agreement (MGA s. 684), and under Bylaw 99/059, s. 27.8, a missed deadline entitles the applicant to treat the application as refused, at its option (s. 27.8). The Permit Holder has not exercised that option, and a third party cannot invoke it. Further, extensive communications between the Permit Holder and the Development Authority since application date show continued movement on the application. In any event, the allegation does not affect the Board's authority to hear appeals from an issued permit.

3.5 The appellants' own filings proceed under 99/059

Most notices of appeal were filed on the Board's form, which refers to Bylaw 99/059. Several appellants plead 99/059 provisions directly: Peterson relies on the Small Holdings District provisions of the former bylaw, and Espinoza and Hiltz cite s. 120.6. Only one appellant (Cooper) invokes Bylaw 26/001 to contest the point. Notices of appeal, with their dates of receipt and the points each raises, are listed in Schedule A.

3.6 Result

The application should be evaluated under Bylaw 99/059. The Permit Holder reserves its response on all other grounds for the merit hearing. These include the scope of the permit, the identity of the Development Authority (raised by Cooper), and the substantive grounds in each appeal.

4. Issue 2: When the Appeal Period Began

4.1 The framework

For a person affected, MGA s. 686(1)(b) allows for appeal “within 21 days after the date on which the notice of the issuance of the permit was given in accordance with the land use bylaw”. The Board cannot extend the period. Both bylaws contain the same notice rule: Bylaw 99/059, s. 29.3 (as amended by Bylaw 23/015, passed September 12, 2023) and Bylaw 26/001, s. 3.7.3. Notice is deemed given on the day it is published on the municipal website, or five calendar days after it is mailed to the applicant and adjacent landowners or occupants. Both bylaws leave appeals to "the Act" (26/001, s. 3.8.1). Issue 1 therefore does not change the analysis of Issue 2.

4.2 The candidate dates

Trigger	Date notice deemed given	Day 21
Mailed notice (September 3) plus five calendar days	September 8, 2026	September 29, 2026
Website posting	September 10, 2026	October 1, 2026 (as stated in the Municipality's notices)
Corrected website posting	September 28, 2026	October 19, 2026 (as stated in the corrected notice)

4.3 The appeals before the Board are timely on any view

Of the 16 appeals (Schedule A), all but one were received on or before September 29, 2026, within 21 days of the earliest possible trigger. The one received on September 30 falls within the October 1 deadline the Municipality itself published. The Board therefore does not need to choose between the competing trigger dates to dispose of the timeliness of any appeal now before it, and the Permit Holder does not ask the Board to dismiss any appeal as late.

4.4 The errors in the September 10 notice

The Board need not decide whether the September 10 notice was valid, because the appeals are timely either way. If it does, the Permit Holder submits that the errors were administrative, in the permit number and the property plan (with an accurate civic address). The notice and the accurate mailed notice correctly identified the property, the nature of the approval, and the decision. The question is whether a reasonable reader could appreciate that his or her interests might be affected and the information that mattered was accurate. Every notice of appeal correctly identifies Permit 2024-DP-00093, 7880 Draper Road and the legal description. One appellant (Peterson) describes the discrepancy as possibly "clerical or administrative."

4.5 The last day for appeals

The Permit Holder asks the Board to find that the appeal period ended no later than October 1, 2026. The accurate mailed notice (Exhibit E) send September 3, 2026 told every recipient that the 21 days ran from the posting on September 10, 2026, and the permit itself records that advertising date (Exhibit D). The September 10 posting identified the property, the nature of the approval and the decision, and carried a deadline of October 1, 2026 (Exhibit F). The period set by s. 686(1)(b) cannot be extended by the Municipality republishing a notice or by the Board, which suggests that the corrected posting of September 28 (Exhibit G) did not restart it. The Permit Holder asks the Board to fix the appeal period deadline as October 1, 2026 definitively, and to open and adjourn each appeal as necessary to preserve jurisdiction, consistent with the Board's practice in earlier files, so the merit hearing is not delayed.

5. Relief Requested

The Permit Holder respectfully asks the Board to:

1. Declare that Bylaw 99/059 governs the evaluation of Development Permit application 2024-DP-00093 and these appeals, by operation of Bylaw 26/001, s. 1.6.1.
2. Confirm that all appeals received on or before September 30, 2026 were filed within the time allowed.
3. Fix October 1, 2026 as the last day for filing appeals.
4. Schedule the merit hearing for the earliest practicable date after that day, with all appeals heard together.
5. Reserve the Permit Holder's right to respond to all other grounds and to supplement this submission.

Respectfully submitted,

Jean Family Businesses Ltd.

Hello Kim and Chris,

Thank you for our meeting yesterday. For your records, below are the items we discussed and agreed to in relation to your site at 7880 Draper Road:

- Your team has decided not to move forward with a LUB 26/001 amendment for Direct Control for the time being, as your focus is the change of use for the existing residential building.
- You have 2 active Development Permits on file for Site Remediation and Change of Use to Resort Facility.
- Both Development Permits will be reviewed under LUB 99/059.
- Your team is in the process of confirming a site remediation plan and we invite your civil engineering team to engage with our engineering group to ensure the scope requirements are sufficient before you move ahead. This can be coordinated through @Isela Contreras-Dogbe.
- You confirmed your goal is to remediate in 2026; once this is complete, the Change of Use Development Permit will be processed for decision.
- At your request, we confirmed 3 Safety Codes inspectors to conduct a preliminary inspection of your current structure to make note of any issues or modifications required, should the change of use development permit be approved. The inspection is scheduled for this week and includes Building, Gas/Plumbing, and Electrical trades.

Thank you,
