Fort McKay Water Treatment Plant – Update

January 24, 2025

Dear community member,

We are pleased to inform the community that water hauling to the Fort McKay Water Treatment Plant has now been completed. The plant began operation yesterday and is running smoothly. While there is still some ongoing work, no additional water hauling is required at this time.

Water quality closely monitored and regularly tested

Rest assured, tap water continues to meet all quality standards and remains safe to drink. Water quality is closely monitored and regularly tested to ensure no disruptions to service or pressure.

Construction update

Work on-site is ongoing, with most construction activities taking place indoors. No loud work is anticipated, and all construction efforts will adhere to the noise regulations set out in the Community Standards Bylaw.

Find all updates and more information the RMWB's water maintenance and service webpage.
